

Your Housing Action Plan

Before deciding where to live and applying for a house, there are a number of things to consider. Taking the time to think about where and how you want to live is an important step in making sure your tenancy is sustainable.

Some questions to consider when deciding on a home

- What areas would you be happy to live in?
- Are there any areas that you will not live in?
- What type of accommodation would you prefer? E.g. Being a single tenant in a private rental or would you prefer living in a share house.
- What is your budget?
- What community services are important to you?
- Will you need public transport options close to home?
- Is there anything specific you will need in your new home? E.g. disability access, bathroom rails or low benchtops.
- What furniture do you already have and what will you need to get?
- Are you able to attend house inspections?
- What support will need from family, friends, NDIS services once you move to your new home?

Planning to move to a new home can be exciting, but also stressful. Taking the time to think about your housing options, your budget and your needs before you start your search means you are more likely to find the right home for you.
